Colorado Acute Long Term Hospital Announces Senior Appointments

Denver (August 13, 2008) — Colorado Acute Long Term Hospital is pleased to announce the appointments of Bill Mitchell Jr. as Chief Executive Officer and Lori Moore as Community Education Director.

Mitchell comes to Colorado Acute with 28 years of health care leadership experience. He was most recently CEO of Vibra Specialty Hospital in Portland, Ore., where he opened the first long term acute care hospital in Oregon. Prior to that, Mitchell held executive positions at Trans Health in Baltimore, Kindred Hospital of San Diego and HealthSouth Rehabilitation Hospital of Austin. He holds a bachelor's degree in finance and marketing, and a master's in business administration from Baldwin Wallace College in Berea, Ohio.

Lori Moore has more than 25 years experience in health care, including nearly 10 years of executive leadership in the Rocky Mountain and Midwest regions. Prior to joining Colorado Acute, she was a regional vice president of operations for SavaSeniorCare. Moore also has held administrative positions at several health care facilities in the Denver market, including Alpine Living Center in Thornton.

Colorado Acute Long Term Hospital is a 63-bed hospital located in Denver specializing in the comprehensive care of medically complex patients who require extended hospitalization. The facility was renovated in early 2008 to include all private rooms, specialized bariatric rooms, 10-bed intensive care unit, radiology and CT scanner and a procedure room.
